A fire in the centre of the business portion of London, England, did damage to the amount of £400,000 on Tuesday.

A fire in Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, on Saturday night destroyed the Princess block and damaged the Ryerson block. Loss $125,000. Enquiry at Washington is said to have disclosed stealings by United States consuls in Ontario to the extent of a million dollars in the past twelve months, and the practices have been continued for years.

A second battle was fought at Pine Ridge Indian agency, Dakota, between soldiers and Indians on Tuesday morning. Thirty-three soldiers of "Two Strikers" band and several soldiers were killed. Many on both sides were wounded.

Carlisle introduced a resolution in the U.S. Senate on Monday providing for the appointment of three commissioners to confer with and discuss on Tuesday morning. Thirty-three trade regulations and to devise means of settling all differences between the two countries.

Five hundred cavalry attempted to disarm Big Foot's band of 150 Sioux at Kase Creek, near Pine Ridge agency on Monday. A bloody battle ensued, lasting two hours. General Miles report to Washington says that eight Indians are known to be killed. Forty prisoners were captured, twenty of whom were wounded. Many more were killed and wounded who have not been recovered. He thinks very few of the band escaped. The ambulance corps reports thirty soldiers killed and forty wounded. Skirmishing still continues, with few casualties. There are five thousand Sioux in the vicinity and a general massacre of the whites is feared. Settlers are flocking to the agencies.

WINNIPEG, January 2.

It is reported that the government is endeavoring to place Lieutenant-governor Anger of Quebec on the judicial bench and appoint Sir Hector Langevin lieutenant-governor to avert the enquiry necessitated by the disclosure of Tarte in the letters on the McGreevey scandal.

While several thousand persons were skating on the river at Warwick on Avon, England on Sunday, the ice suddenly cracked in the middle of the river and precipitated five hundred into the water. The exact number drowned is not known, but 17 bodies have been recovered.

The official report of the battle at Pine Ridge agency on Monday gives 26 soldiers killed and 36 wounded. It is estimated that 150 Indians were killed and the same number wounded. In Tuesday's engagement two soldiers and twelve Indians were killed and twelve Indians wounded.

Parnell and O'Brien had a conference at Bologna, France, on Tuesday on the Irish situation. It is understood that a compromise has been effected involving the retirement of Parnell and the withdrawal of McCarthy and the election of another leader, who will retire after the general elections, and the new members will elect a permanent leader.

DUBLIN meeting last night: No team to be sent to Winnipeg for the bonspiel on Feb. 3. H. S. Young appointed to collect and pay Merchants' prize of last year, won by rinks of Rev. D. G. McQueen and T. B. Henderson. Caretaker instructed to keep members out from using ice or stones. Members must pay before playing. Country members may join for half fee. Saturday night request for members of club not on any rink. Play to count from 7:30 sharp. Drawing for games to be continued until further notice.

A. HURCHINS of Poplar lake threshed 126 sacks of two-rowed barley from 4 sacks sown. The yield reached 100 lbs to the sack from the threshing. Ten acres of red fife and Ladoga wheat yielded 40 bushels from the acre. The yield would have been greater at the Ladoga was too ripe when cut. The two-rowed barley mentioned was introduced into this district by W. Nicholson of the Sturgeon. It has a short head with the grains close together. It yields as heavily as the six-rowed variety and the grain is of much better quality but its requirement for season which is ripen than the six-rowed. It must be sown as early as oats to ensure early opening.

EDMONTON BULLETIN, JAN. 3, 1891.

THE ASSEMBLY FIGHT.

A fair sample of the manner in which the public business of the Territories is conducted under the present management and of the tactics pursued in the house by the advisers of the executive is furnished by the Cullen affair. During the session of 1889 one C. E. Cullen, a resident of South Qu'Appelle, appeared before the immigration committee and represented that he had already performed valuable services to the Territories in having induced the settlement of a colony of Germans, who had been living in Roumania, in the South Qu'Appelle district. He also represented that he was versed in the languages and customs of several of the people of Continental Europe. The immigration business connected with the the heriship of some property was calling him to Great Britain and perhaps the continent shortly, and that if he was paid a matter of $6 a day towards his expenses he would be glad to expend a large part of his time and all his very great abilities in securing an influx of desirable settlers into the Northwest. The committee looked favorably on the proposition and recommended Mr. Cullen's employment on the proposed terms for a short period as agent to Great Britain only, considering that continental Europe was too far a field for the resources of the Territories to handle. Succeding circumstances placed the conduct of the executive in the hands of the lieutenant governor's irresponsible advisers, a state of affairs that was not contemplated when the recommendation was made, and under which consequently no responsibility could properly be laid upon the committee. However, in February last the executive engaged Cullen for a four months time to visit England, agreed to pay him $6 a day towards expenses half down and half when he was ready to return with his immigrants and secured him passes to Liverpool as well. Immediately on arrival at Liverpool he wrote for the remainder of the $600 coming to him on his four months agreement and it was sent to him. Shortly after receiving his money he transferred himself from London to Hamburg from which place he wrote that he had seen several families of Germans off for New Toulouha, Assiniboia, the inference being that he had had no success there, and asked for a new engagement, of four months on the same terms as before, which was promptly granted him. He was next heard of in Roumania through the medium of the British consuls there, to whom he would give no satisfactory account of himself and who, as he seemed to deal entirely with Jews of the lowest class, entertained suspicions of the character of his mission not exactly creditable to the paid agent of the Northwest government, and caused a demand for an explanation from that government. By the time these letters had filtered through the various departments of the several governments and reached Regina, another demand for funds had been received from Cullen and duly acceded to by the Northwest government, the amount being $300. Shortly afterwards another demand for $150 to be paid to Mrs. Cullen to enable her to reach Europe and act as private secretary to Mr. Cullen were received and were also granted, although the advisers had had no proof of results from Cullen's work—had never required regarding the German families he claimed to have sent out—and had fair presumptive evidence in their hands that he was a swindler of the first water and a disgrace to the Territories. Very shortly after this latter payment the house assembled and some of the members, anxious to hear how immigration matters were progressing asked for the returns regarding Cullen, which when brought down set forth the facts above stated. The papers were considered by a committee who reported that the executive had shown carelessness in the handling of the public money in this case.

The mildness of the censure contained in the report, considering the circumstances of the case, should in reason have been satisfactory to the advisors, but they apparently made up their minds not to allow it to be adopted by the house, and for four long sessions they talked and talked and proposed amendments which would entitle them to talk again in order to keep off as long as possible the adverse vote. They asserted that the transaction was a perfectly straight business one throughout, that Cullen had worked faithfully in the interests of the Territories, that the suspicions of the British consuls in Roumania were without foundation and that were the same time they do again they would follow the course already taken. They were particularly strong on the service Cullen had rendered in sending out the German families from Hamburg to New Toulouha and went so far as to produce a letter from the immigration agent of the Canadian government at Regina in which he vouched for their arrival and that they had been sent by Cullen. The lengthening of the debate gave the opportunity to the member for South Qu'Appelle to visit the Germans in question who were settled in his constituency and who gave him affidavits that they had not come on Cullen's recommendation and indeed had never heard of the man who in Europe. These affidavits showed the utter uselessness of attempting further to make out a case for Cullen or for the executive employing him and after holding the house for other business for four days and still protesting that Cullen was a maligned man who no doubt was still working in the interests of the Territories while abuse was being heaped upon him in Regina, the advisers left the house and allowed the censure to pass without recording their votes against it. The very next morning a member of the majority was shown a letter which had been received from Cullen by the executive dated from the Canary Islands, in which the writer announced that although he was then in the service of an Anglo-French-Argentine colonization company he still had the interests of the Northwest at heart and desired that the balance of $150 due him on his second agreement be remitted forthwith. This was the man regarding whom the advisers had solemnly asserted to the house their belief that he had honestly earned the money that had been paid him and was still engaged in as honestly earning the balance due. Falsehood could go no further and yet these were the man whom the lieutenant-governor had honored with his confidence as worthy of administering the public affairs of the Territories, and whom the assembly was to be tricked or coerced into voting confidence in as well. The amount of money involved was not large, but the carelessness shown in the handling of it was most conspicuous, and the bad faith of the advisers towards the house brought out during the debate caused the final withdrawal from their support of two more members who were added to the majority, leaving the four advisers with a support of only two votes besides their own in a house of 22 members.

It may be asked. What possible object had the advisers in taking such improper ground during the debate, and prolonging it so far beyond all reason when they could not at any time hope to avert the final adverse vote? The improper ground was taken to give an excuse for lengthening the debate which was lengthened for the purpose of showing the majority the power of obstruction possessed by the minority, so that if it was desired to call in question other acts of the executive the majority would hesitate to do so when they knew that each investigation might cost one, two, three, four or more days of valuable time. In view of the fact that the legislative work of the session was already well advanced, while the public works and other reports upon which criticism might be based were not yet ready to lay before the house or were refused, and also in view of the fact that the Cullen matter had thoroughly established the lack of administrative ability as well as of good faith on the part of the advisers it was thought well to merely give a full statement of the position taken by the majority in a reply to the lieutenant governor's message and bring the session to a close.

Another matter which shows up very clearly the disadvantage to the people of the Territories of the present method of administering their affairs is the matter of the public printing. The extent and necessity of incurring (Continued on 2nd page.)

a large amount of expense for printing in the carrying on of the Territorial government need not be enlarged upon. At the same time it is a branch of the public service that has not an adequate usefulness beyond a certain point. Also that the requirements of the service at large demand that each branch shall be administered economically. This applies to the public printing with as great force as to any part of the service. If it were desired to guard the public interests by guarding the public treasury, the printing like every other expensive work, would be let by tender. This was what was attempted to be done by the responsible advisory council of 1888, and the fact that the lieutenant-governor failed to carry out the recommendations of his then council in that behalf was one of the chief causes for their resignation. Since then, until about the opening of the recent session of the assembly, the Regina Leader has done all the government work at prices arranged without competition, and of course has given the government in return a very hearty and loyal support. When the assembly was about to meet at its late session the circumstances were felt to be so peculiar that a more widespread support than Leader could give unaided was thought desirable. The Calgary Herald was therefore given a share of the work also at private prices, and in order that this division of labor should not affect the enthusiasm of the Leader the amount of work was swollen to nearly if not quite double its former volume. Notwithstanding two printing offices were now used to supply what one had supplied before, the report on public works was not ready for presentation to the members of the assembly before the session closed, nor has it been distributed yet. Of course the Calgary Herald whooped it up in most elegant style for irresponsible government in return for its share of the spoil but what have the electors of the Northwest to say about this purchase of newspaper support for the improper and unconstitutional actions of the Territorial government with the money of the people, which if not so wasted might have been expended on useful public works? What are the inner workings of this printing business it is impossible to say, as the request for returns to be laid before the house was refused by the lieutenant governor. If proof were wanting, this should be proof that the printing deal was not such that its being placed before the country would impress the people favorably with the manner in which their affairs are at present managed.

THE Free Press of December 20th is a magnificent Christmas number of 28 pages, printed on toned paper. It is by all odds the best, because the most practical, newspaper Christmas number the BULLETIN has ever seen. Besides the ordinary news matter of the day it has illustrated articles on Winnipeg's water power, Reminiscences of the city, Winnipeg's wholesalers, Prince Albert, Lethbridge, Canada's Norway, descriptive of the British Columbia coast, Sketches of Chas. Mair, N. F. Davin, Dr. Bryce and C. N. Bell. The bison's habits, by Chas. Mair. The story of the revolt of the Red River half breeds in 1849 by J. J. Gunn, etc. The number has been accorded an excellent advertising patronage, and it is only in this department that it is open to criticism. It contains a half page advertisement of the City of Superior, Wisconsin. The business man who gives his rival the benefit of his advertising is a fool, and the Canadian paper—and particularly the Northwest paper—which advertises the rival fields of the United States at any price is in that particular a great deal worse than a fool, if that be possible.

THERE is great disappointment throughout the Dominion at the announcement that the publishers of the Montreal Star are too busy with their regular subscription and advertising business to allow of their completing a Star this year. These Christmas Stars are such gems that it is very generally hoped the publishers will see their way clear to continue their publication.

THE holiday number of the London Free Press is to hand. It has twenty-four well printed, interesting and profusely illustrated pages, a very beautifully colored cover and a beautiful double-page colored engraving.

RAISE the Flag is the title of a handsome compilation of patriotic Canadian songs and poems by the best writers in Canada, issued by the Rose publishing company. The cover is beautifully illuminated.

THE Presbyterian Review of Toronto issues a very handsome Christmas number.

The timber regulations have been altered to permit licensees to pay the royalty of five per cent, either on the value of the lumber in the logs at the time of sale, or on the value of the lumber as sold, if paid at the former period the royalty shall be on the average record for the year during the three months next preceding the date of payment of the dues.

The regulations regarding the acquisition of petroleum lands have been amended so that entry can be made on affidavit that there are indications of petroleum on the claim. If within five years the person securing entry can prove that he has at least one paying oil well on the claim he may purchase the land. If he cannot prove this at the end of five years his entry is cancelled.

A wedding party from the Lower Settlement drove through town to the Methodist church on Tuesday afternoon, the occasion being the marriage of George Gullion, Jr. of the Two Lakes on the Athabasca trail and Miss Annie Bayne of Victoria. Rev. Mr. Proctor performed the ceremony. The bridesmaids were given a salute of fire arms on their return from the church to W. Borwick's house, where the wedding feast was spread and the occasion celebrated in old time style.

A FEW weeks ago John Cameron, president of the board of trade, wrote to the central experimental farm, asking that the farm authorities would shortly issue a pamphlet specially designed to furnish such information as he had asked for. The pamphlet is evidently a business information, run for the public benefit. If the geological survey is made a tenth part as practical the country would be much richer than it is.

STURGEON NOTES.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Laguen of the Indian department at Whitefish lake are visiting at Mrs. Carson's.

Robt. Kelly, the Sturgeon coal miner, has opened up a line shaft near the old mine, on the north side of the river.

The Sturgeon river bachelors gave a ball on New Year's night at the residence of D. Craig. There was a large attendance and a merry time. Jas. McMunn of Edmonton furnished music on the violin and R. C. Dobbin on the cornet.

Rev. Canon Newton will deliver a lecture on matrimony at W. H. Carson's house on the evening of Wednesday January 14th. Admission free.

THE publishers of the Dominion Illustrated claim to have placed before the public the finest holiday publication in Canada, and the number which arrived on Monday's mail full bore out the claim. It is of exclusively Canadian origin and in no single particular is it inferior to the best that is produced in either Britain or the United States. A mere list of the attractions of the number would be too long for insertion here. The paper itself contain 48 pages of excellent original literary matter interspersed with illustrations from life, many of which are not equalled by the highest class of United States magazines. Six colored cartoon pages in addition tell the story in a French Canadian's horse trade dialect of a French Canadian's horse trade. A new piece of music, "God Save Canada" is a large and beautifully illuminated copy of the Lord's Prayer and a very handsome old chromo, accompany the paper.

GRIP's hits on its page of Aldermanic price. If Grip would take politics a little easier and give the abilities thus employed to lighter matter it would do a great deal more than now to lessen the burden of life in this fair Canada of ours.

THE Chicago Graphic of December 20th is a specially good number. It attacks the United States statesman's Indian policy in the present disturbance in Dakota, and practically asserts that the Indians are being forced to fight in order that they may be destroyed.
